Leave an Extraordinary Legacy to the United Board

Since its founding, the United Board has been blessed by the support of loyal supporters who generously entrusted the United Board with the financial resources that eventually grew into our endowment.

Thanks to that endowment and the ongoing donations of people like you — friends of the United Board and alumni and friends of the institutions with which we work in Asia — we have been able to provide crucial program support to institutions throughout Asia for nearly a century.

Your legacy gift to the United Board will help further our mission of supporting a Christian presence in colleges and universities in Asia. You can make a lasting gift such as the following:

- A bequest in your will
- Establishing an endowed fund to support the United Board and/or our valued partner(s)
- Life insurance policy and/or beneficiary designation
- Charitable remainder trust
- IRA and other retirement plans

Legal Name: The United Board for Christian Higher Education in Asia
United Board Board of Directors number (EIN): 14-3562847

You should always consult with your legal and tax advisors before making a planned gift. There are often significant tax benefits with making a legacy gift. We would be pleased to help you consider a gift that suits your planning needs.

Blessed by Loyal Supporters

Dr. William K. Lee
United Board Trustee

Dr. William K. Lee has made a commitment to join the United Board Legacy Society because he believes in the United Board’s mission and impact: “The United Board can continue to work with its extensive network of Asian institutional partners to champion important educational initiatives.”

Dr. Lee has served as a Trustee since 1997 but his relationship with the United Board began decades earlier. When he was a student at Yonsei University in Seoul, Korea, in the 1960s, many of the school’s library books were purchased with United Board support. “This was a period of financial difficulty in Korea,” Dr. Lee said. “Korea didn’t have much access to foreign currency then, so its support from the United Board was a valuable source of dollars.” Dr. Lee’s career took him from the classrooms of Yonsei to a successful medical practice in northern New Jersey where he continues to serve his alma mater and the United Board by strengthening relations with their supporters within the Korean-American community.

Marilee Scalf
Educator and community activist

“Community service has certainly been the underlying theme of both our lives. My late husband, Alvin, and I went to the Philippines as Congregational missionaries in 1940. In the decades that followed, we always strove for ways to help young scholars — in America, Asia, and Africa — connect their academic interests to the needs of surrounding communities.

One of the really significant contributions of the United Board’s work in Asia is its sponsorship of faculty exchanges among Asian nations, so many colleges are contributing to building a new generation of scholars who know and understand their neighbors and are learning to work together for the good of all. As far as I knew, the United Board is the only group that focuses so much of its program and its budget on these exchanges. That is a major reason I think it is the most worthy of all educational efforts for my financial support.”

Florence Tan Moeson
Alumna, Ginling College (Class of ’42)

Florence Tan Moeson passed away in 2008, having led a vibrant life spanning two continents. A graduate of one of the United Board’s earliest Chinese partners, Ginling College, Mrs. Moeson taught school in China and studied English before coming to the United States in 1947 to study at Florida Southern College on a scholarship. After receiving a master’s degree in library science from Catholic University in 1956, she joined the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C., where she applied her expertise in Chinese language and history for more than 40 years.

Mrs. Moeson regularly supported Ginling College with donations, made through the United Board. She thoughtfully established a Trust, in which she named the United Board as a beneficiary. By doing so, she established an endowment to provide scholarships for students at Ginling College, her beloved alma mater. Mrs. Moeson believed that Ginling College formed the foundation of her higher education and launched her professional life. Her faculty and scholarship fund, made possible by the endowment established with the United Board, continues to help a new generation of young women at Ginling College pursue their own academic and professional aspirations.
